

Get trained in telecoms, power and signalling

Network Training & Resource Solutions (ntrs) Limited is Linbrooke Services' registered training and recruitment partner, offering unique, specialist services in telecoms, power and signalling.

Our superb state-of-the-art training facility in Sheffield offers accredited qualifications and assessment in all aspects of telecoms, power and signalling. Whether standard or bespoke, we design the training packages that meet a client's exact needs. We proudly maintain the highest standards of training and achievement in all areas.

We offer the most comprehensive telecommunications training courses in the UK, working with major blue-chip vendors to ensure we are using the most up-to-date and advanced equipment to guarantee our students receive training and skills in the latest key and emerging technologies and processes that employers in this dynamic industry look for.

Our courses are aimed at both Service leavers and civilians, and are heavily biased towards practical skills so that the students gain as much experience as possible during their time with us. The core theory of all our communications is covered as a mandatory element of the programmes, and practical sessions are delivered to ensure all candidates have the best skills.

As ntrs was established and is run by ex-Forces personnel, we know first-hand how to tailor our training to meet the resettlement needs of all ex-military Service leavers and their needs both, able or disabled.
